

APPLIED RESEARCH & DATA ANALYTICS IN FOOTBALL & FUTSAL PHD COURSE

Course Definition

The Applied Research & Data Analytics in Football & Futsal: From theory to application Blended Intensive Program (BIP) will have a scientific component including presentations by prominent researchers and applied scientists of topics related to applied science in football and futsal. The program will also promote and have a strong social component to allow the interaction and integration of researchers from different institutions, allowing the transfer of knowledge and discussions surrounding applied science research in football and futsal.

The learning and teachings methods will promote the integration of disciplines by including authentic tasks that involve hands-on activities, collaborative work, and the application of theoretical knowledge to solve practical problems.

Participants

PhD students enrolled in any disciplines of Sports Science from Higher Educational Institutions across Europe supported by the Erasmus + Programme.

Portuguese PhD students from universities that are part of CIDESD or have established collaborations with the Portugal Football School will also participate in the program as invited institutions.

The program will award 3 ECTS for the participants.
