sions on potential applications of their studies in real-life scenarios. The BIP coordinators will tutor them for this purpose. A meeting will first be organised to explain the course syllabus, its goals, and requirements.

Objectives:

- Educate students on how machine learning and AI can be applied to business processes, enhancing decision-making and efficiency.
- Foster a deep understanding of the diverse impacts of digital transformation across sectors.
- Encourage collaborative learning and application of theoretical knowledge to real-world scenarios.

Physical Component Description:

The physical component of the BIP program will take place at the West University of Timișoara (WUT) from June the 2nd to June the 6th, 2024. During this period, students will engage in interactive, in-person activities designed to complement the virtual component and deepen their understanding of digital transformation in business. The activities will be structured to provide both theoretical knowledge and practical experience, ensuring that students can apply what they have learned in real-world scenarios. Each day will include a combination of lectures, hands-on workshops, case study analyses, and group discussions, all facilitated by expert instructors.

Objectives:

- Provide students with a solid foundation in business administration adapted to the digital context.
- Develop financial literacy and the ability to use digital tools for business analysis.
- Encourage critical thinking about the societal impacts of digital transformation.
- Assess learning outcomes and provide constructive feedback to enhance students' understanding.
